BEAVERTON MAYOR DENNY DOYLE REELECTED TO NATIONAL LEAGUE OF CITIES BOARD OF DIRECTORS

BEAVERTON, Ore. – Mayor Denny Doyle was reelected to the National League of Cities (NLC) board of directors at the group’s annual business meeting in November at the 2016 City Summit in Pittsburgh.

Doyle was elected to a two-year term and will play an important role as a leader of the nation’s largest and most representative membership and advocacy organization for city officials.

“I am very honored to be selected to serve on the NLC board,” said Mayor Doyle. “As city officials, it’s critical that we come together to advocate for the issues that directly affect our local communities.”

In his role on the board, Doyle will meet throughout the year to guide NLC’s strategic direction and set the organization’s advocacy priorities and operational goals. Board members are selected by a 15-member nominating committee and confirmed by a vote of NLC leadership.

“The National League of Cities board of directors serves a critical role in guiding our organization’s priorities and policies,” said Clarence E. Anthony, CEO and executive director of the National League of Cities (NLC). “I want to thank the members elected to the board for their service to our organization, and look forward to working with them during an important year for the nation’s cities.”
