The first Beaverton Restaurant Week rolls out and showcases local gourmet options.

CONTRIBUTED PHOTO - Beaverton's first Restaurant Week marked a successful beginning.

The first-ever Beaverton Restaurant Week took place from September 28 to Oct. 8, with the goal of highlighting the concept that people don't need to leave the city to enjoy gourmet dining.

Beaverton Mayor Denny Doyle said, "Downtown Beaverton is the hub for independent, family-owned restaurants serving up authentic flavors from all over the world. Diners during our first-ever Beaverton Restaurant Week definitely got a taste of what our city has to offer. This promotion was a big success and we thank everyone for supporting dining diversity in Beaverton."

The early results of the restaurant survey that the City of Beaverton conducted show a high rate (80 percent) of restaurants responding that this improved business, and so far, 100 percent of restaurant owners said they would participate again, according to the city.

Tan Tan Café & Deli served more than 120 bowls of its promotional dish, "Phozole" – a fusion of Vietnamese pho with Mexican pozole, which sold out in one week.
